

I.F

I.F publications és una editorial establerta a Barcelona, la tardor del 2015. I.F és un principi d'acció, d'elucubració, d'invenció i diàleg entre art contemporani, poesia, pensament i experiència.

I.F publications promou activar aquelles zones intersticials del saber on apareix un pensament indisciplinat: allà on s'evidencien els límits de les disciplines i es fan visibles noves maneres del veure i del pensar.

Cada llibre, pretén ser el resultat d'un treball col·lectiu, d'una discussió entre forma i contingut, entre l'editorial, l'autor i el lector. Per I.F, el llibre no és el suport d'una obra acabada, sinó una etapa més dels processos creació i investigació a través dels quals donar a conèixer aspectes desconeguts d'artistes, pensadors i professionals, siguin aquests contemporanis o no.

Davant de la cultura-mercaderia defensem l'edició independent com un espai de treball i reflexió.

Després de 10 anys de publicacions irregulars, aventures i desventures editorials, tanquem I.F agraïnt a tots els col·laboradxs que ens han acompanyat en aquest viatge del fer i circular col·lectiu, especialment a: Francesc Abad, Jordi Mitjà, Moritz Küng, Simon Williams, Alba Pagán, Santi Rivas, Núria Solà, George Jepson, Francesc Ruíz, Ferran Fandos i Dork Zabunyan.

Fins aviat! Una abraçada ben forta.

INTERNATIONAL FRIENDSHIP

I.F Publications is a publishing house that was established in Barcelona in autumn 2015. I.F. is a principle of action, invention and dialogue between contemporary art, poetry, critical thought and experience.

I.F Publications promotes the activation of those interstitial zones of knowledge where undisciplined thought emerges, where the limits of disciplines become apparent, and where new ways of seeing and thinking become visible.

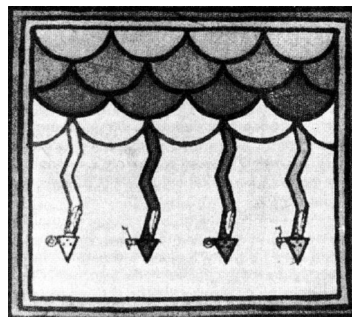

Each book is intended to be the result of a collective effort and a dialogue between form and content, involving the publisher, author and reader. For I.F, the book is not a vehicle for finished works, but another stage in the processes of creation and research, through which unknown aspects of artists, thinkers and professionals can be explored, whether contemporary or not.

In the face of commodity culture, we defend independent publishing as a space for work and reflection.

After ten years of irregular publications, editorial adventures and misadventures, we are closing I.F. We would like to thank all our collaborators who have accompanied us on this collective journey of creation and sharing, especially: Francesc Abad, Jordi Mitjà, Moritz Küng, Simon Williams, Alba Pagán, Santi Rivas, Núria Solà, George Jepson, Francesc Ruíz, Ferran Fandos, and Dork Zabunyan. See you soon! A big hug.

FRICCIÓN. UNA ETNOGRAFÍA DE LA CONEXIÓN GLOBAL Anna Tsing

Una rueda gira debido a su encuentro con la superficie de la carretera; girando en el aire no va a ninguna parte. Frotar dos palos juntos produce calor y luz; un solo palo es solo un palo. En ambos casos, es la fricción la que produce movimiento, acción, efecto. Desafiando la visión generalizada de que la globalización significa invariablemente un “choque” de culturas, la antropóloga Anna Tsing desarrolla aquí el concepto de fricción como una metáfora de las interacciones sociales diversas y conflictivas que conforman nuestro mundo contemporáneo.

Ella se enfoca en una “zona de compromiso incómodo” en particular, las selvas tropicales de Indonesia, donde en las décadas de 1980 y 1990 los intereses capitalistas remodelaron cada vez más el paisaje, no tanto a través del diseño corporativo como a través de las incómodas cadenas de empresarios legales e ilegales que le arrebataron la tierra. En respuesta, surgieron movimientos ambientalistas para defender las selvas tropicales y las comunidades de personas que viven en ellas. No se limita a una aldea, una provincia o una nación, el drama social de la selva tropical de Indonesia incluye a ambientalistas locales y nacionales, ciencia internacional, inversionistas norteamericanos, defensores de los recolectores de caucho brasileños, agencias de financiamiento de la ONU, montañeros, ancianos de las aldeas y urbanas, etc.

Al proporcionar una cartera de métodos para estudiar las interconexiones globales, Tsing muestra cuán curiosas y creativas son las diferencias culturales en las garras del encuentro mundano y cuánto se pasa por alto en las teorías contemporáneas de lo global.

LA BRUJERÍA CAPITALISTA. PRÁCTICAS DE DESEMBRUJO Isabelle Stengers, Philippe Pignarre

Está claro, hay un horror económico. Pero con denunciarlo no basta: si la denuncia fuera efectiva, el capitalismo habría desaparecido hace mucho tiempo ... Los autores llaman “capitalismo” a ese sistema que se apodera de nosotros a través de alternativas infernales, del tipo: “Si pides derechos adicionales, un aumento de salario, promueve la deslocalización y el desempleo”. ¿Cómo no quedar paralizado? Otras personas lo han llamado sistema mágico. ¿Y si no fuera una metáfora? ¿Y si ese fuera el mejor nombre que podríamos darle al control que el capitalismo tiene sobre nosotros, ayudándonos a pensar en las formas en que podemos controlarlo? ¿Por qué hemos sido tan vulnerables a un sistema así? ¿Cómo protegerse? Ciertas ideas de izquierda y, en primer lugar, la creencia en el “progreso”, ¿no le habrían dado al capitalismo los medios para dejarnos impotentes? Este libro es para aquellos que se niegan a aceptar la resignación. Afirmar la importancia política de la acción de colectivos capaces de crear nuevas formas de resistir a lo que estamos sometidos, y la necesidad de una cultura de aprendizaje y relevo, porque necesitamos el conocimiento que produce y pide la construcción de tales colectivos. Es a través de la pregunta pragmática “cómo conseguirlo” que los autores extienden el grito lanzado en Seattle: “¡Otro mundo es posible!”.

EL MENSAJE MATA. SUBSTRATOS DE CAPITAL COMPUTACIONAL Jonathan Beller

I.F. publications Catalogue

Escrito como una llamada de atención al campo de los estudios de medios, El mensaje mata analiza la violencia vinculada a las funciones cotidianas de los medios digitales. En su núcleo está el concepto de ‘capital computacional’: la idea de que el capitalismo en sí mismo es una computadora que convierte cualidades en cantidades, y que el surgimiento de la cultura y las tecnologías digitales bajo el capitalismo debe verse como una extensión de la lógica sangrienta del capitalismo.

En diálogo con Borges, Turing, Claude Shannon, Hitchcock y Marx, este libro rastrea el capital computacional para revelar los linajes del poder capitalizado a medida que ha reestructurado la representación, la conciencia y la supervivencia en los siglos XX y XXI. Argumenta que la intensificación global de la desigualdad se basa en la producción discursiva, informática y mediada por la pantalla de la diferencia social.

En última instancia, El mensaje mata defiende el reconocimiento de las comunicaciones de los medios en todas las plataformas (libros, películas, videos, fotografías e incluso el lenguaje mismo) como tecnologías de la economía política, enredadas con los contextos sociales de un capitalismo que es inherentemente racial, de género y genocida.

LOS SUBCOMMUNES
PLANEAR FUGITIVO Y ESTUDIO NEGRO
Fred Motten, Stefano Harney

En esta serie de ensayos, Fred Moten y Stefano Harney se basan en la teoría y la práctica de la tradición radical negra, ya que apoya, inspira y amplía el pensamiento social y político contemporáneo y la crítica estética. Hoy la riqueza general de la vida social se ve confrontada por mutaciones en los mecanismos de control: la proliferación de la logística capitalista, la gobernanza por crédito y la gestión de la pedagogía. Trabajando desde y dentro de la poiesis social de la vida en los subcomunes, Moten y Harney desarrollan y expanden una variedad de conceptos: estudio, deuda, entorno, planificación y envío. En el camino fugitivo de una negrura histórica y global, los ensayos de este volumen inquietan e invitan al lector a los conjuntos autoorganizados de la vida social que se lanzan cada día y cada noche en medio del antagonismo generalizado de los subcomunes.

ART COLLECTION

THIS IS THE COVER OF THE BOOK
George Brecht

Fluxus artist George Brecht (born New York 1926 – died Cologne 2008) is one of the originators of the ‘participatory’ art movement, in which artwork can only be experienced through the active involvement of the viewer. He is also widely considered to be an important precursor to conceptual art. In his ‘Book’ he describes the specific nature of each single page, in a gesture that renders the printed matter a tautological object. Brecht originally conceived his book in 1964, but did not publish it until 1972, the year he moved to Cologne. This reprint aims to make this thought-provoking and witty artists’ book available again in an affordable version that accurately follows the original layout.

AT AN UNCERTAIN DISTANCE FROM THE GROUND
Jordi Mitjà

At an Uncertain Distance from the Ground by Jordi Mitjà is structured around a series of notes, sketches and photographs taken by the artist between 2010 and 2015. It attempts to disorganise the whole series of findings and insights in order to give them another meaning. The project draws endless lines and vanishing points upon the territory of his interests, both in the artistic and personal fields. In order to carry out the project, the artist asked IF Publications to aid him in the process of scrambling and re-sorting these sets of data. This publication experiments with the ways in which to create a book.

PANORMANA
Francesc Abad

Since 2003, Catalan artist Francesc Abad (Terrasa, 1946) has dedicated himself to composing an index which compiles all the work processes throughout his career. Panorama, the third publication to be born of this index, is articulated around the conflictual dimension of the notion of landscape in an industrial and post-industrial context. At the same time, Panorama reveals one of the principal work techniques Francesc Abad applies when arranging images, voices and elements.

FARBEN ALPHABET
Heimo Zobernig

This publication brings together two early works by Austrian artist Heimo Zobernig, Farben (Colours), an artist book first published some thirty years ago, and Alphabet, a series of twenty-six photographs taken in the early 1990s. Because of the specific nature and sequence of both works, they are being combined here for the first time as two resonating entities. The dust jacket brings this combination of numbers and letters into contact with another, related element of Zobernig's oeuvre, the CMYK scheme for colour printing. At every turn, we seem to be looking at a manual of basic knowledge.

DIARY OF DREAMS

Iziar Okariz

It was back in 2013 when Itziar Okariz (1965, Donostia–San Sebastian) exhibited Diary of Dreams for the first time. In its original iteration, the artist's daily recollection of dreams took on the form of a cumulative pile of notes. Eventually, Okariz presented these notes as a vocal performance in which she multiplied the phrases, read the words repeatedly, and even inverted their syntax. The oral deconstruction of the narrative resulted in a fourth rendering of the dreams: the transcription of the performative reading into a book.

CLOSER

Francesc Ruíz

Is a comic book that emphasises a Handheld Mirror while strolling through Angoulême (France), known for the International Comic Festival since 1974. leafing through the pages, the river discovers various sights, and the reproduced surroundings appear doformed, as in a distorted mirror, a detournement of the place itself. Each of the drawings is repeated on a double page. In this way becoming an 'echo-comic' that duplicates the environment and the pages themselves. Enhanced by accompanying voice that sings scattered fragments of songs by Joy Division's cult album Closer (1980). The book is an echolalia of a walk through the city.

COLECTION POLITICS OF SENSIBLE

FOOTNOTES FROM THE CENTRE FOR RESEARCH ARCHITECTURE

Footnotes from the Centre for Research Architecture brings together short contributions by students and staff of the MA 2017-18 programme. Published on the occasion of the Centre for Research Architecture's final exhibition at Goldsmiths College, University of London on the 28th September 2018. This publication provides a conceptual framework to compile a series of visual and textual footnotes by each of CRA's students. It enables each student to make visible a crucial fragment of the research process that fits neither within the dissertation's narrative or within the exhibition's format.

Placed either at the end of the page, a chapter or a book, footnotes affect the body of a text from without. From the margins, footnotes operate as powerful tools to unwrap and expand a key concept/ context, to give space to shadowy information, to expose a methodological approach, to highlight a discovered source, to acknowledge an external contribution, to set the limits of a text, to redirect the reader. By inverting the figure-ground relation, we aim to give space to material that haunts our research projects from the outside.

The Centre for Research Architecture (CRA), Goldsmiths, University of London, engages spatial practice in relation to contemporary culture, politics, media, ecology, and justice. It brings together students from a wide variety of cultural and educational backgrounds, and from a diverse range of disciplines to work through questions of this kind. The Centre offers an alternative to traditional architectural education through a unique studio-based environment that investigates the urgent political conditions of our time through a combination of fieldwork, theoretical inquiry, and creative practices.

THE INSISTENCE OF STRUGGLE. IMATGES, UPRISINGS, COUNTER-REVOLUTIONS Dork Zabunyan

In this compilation of essays, Dork Zabunyan analyses the creation, use and circulation of images in the contexts of the 'Arab Spring' and the Syrian War. In them he speaks of the participation of images in the evolution of uprisings and peoples, the temporality they provide, the mise-en-scène of media propaganda, the use of horror, and the need to elaborate a right to a dignified image.

What do images perform in times of uprising[s] and counter-revolution[s]? The Insistence of Struggle examines and confronts audiovisual and cinematic works as heterogeneous as the films produced by the collective of filmmakers Abounaddara, the avant-garde montages of Dziga Vertov, the images by the 'anonymous', the documentary films of Stefano Savona, the videos made by ISIS, and certain works by Brian de Palma, Chris Marker or Harun Farocki, inviting us to rethink the limits and ethics of the visual. With each essay, the reader is not only confronted with the images of past and present struggles, but also with how these images persist and encourage future struggles.

This book includes the following contributions:
Preface by Stefan Tarnowski. Interview with Abounaddara. Interview with Stefano Savona and Laurent Jeanpierre. Afterword by Paul Sztulman

AARC

Alter Architecture Research Collective (ed.)

Alter Architecture Research Collective (AARC) is an interdisciplinary group of thinkers and practitioners that come together to observe, question and distort existing strategies of cultural and spatial production. Understanding architecture as appropriation, production and organization of space, mostly governed centrally by economic logics that work to entrap subjectivity, AARC seeks to inhabit and distort these mechanism. Where counter-strategies imply simply opposition, alteration opens space for multiplicities and difference.

With research as a methodology, publishing is the device chosen to intervene in the discourse of spatial production. AARC proposes a series of short publications as a site for provoking other ways to engage with increasingly fragmented space. Sourced from social interactions, experiences of everyday life, breakthroughs of collective self-organisation, it is the form to act upon respond to reality. Our work is always processual, always trying to catch up with a world that escapes our grasp. As a collective, we seek no authorship, nor authority; to dissolve and disseminate responsibility horizontally, together, as many and one.
